GOING SECURITY

There are curious and practices in our country which have been handed down to us from the fathers, which are accepted by most of us without question, and yet there are some of them which a very little investigation would show to be utterly absurd and based on wrong principles. For many years I have looked upon the common practice of going security as being a transaction of this character, and the more I study it the more convinced I am that it is pernicious, and should be utterly abolished. Under the rules now governing business, indorsing is so common that few question the wisdom of it until they are caught in the trap and obliged to pay the debts of some other man and thus thousands of men put their names to notes without thought that it is more than a legal formality, and by so doing imperil and often lose their property which morally belongs to their families as much as to themselves, and which lost, leaves the family to struggle against misfortune.

When a buyer and seller come together and make a trade it is for their mutual advantage. If there is any profit in the transaction, one or both will get it. Now, what an absurdity it is to ask a third man who has no voice in the trade or in the ownership of the business, and no share in the profit of the transaction, to assume all the risk of it, and this is precisely what the indorser does. If I have plenty of property to sell I am the one who ought to assume the risk of the amount being paid, and not some man who is simply too good natured to say no when asked to sign the note. Most men do not need to give security and rogues do not deserve it. There are thousands of men who are not satisfied with the slow methods of accumulating property which are always safe, but who imagine that if they could command more capital they would make money faster, and these are the men who want to be backed up by the names of their neighbors on their notes. When one indorses for this class of men who are so willing to risk other people's money, he simply gives them the power to do more harm, and extend their operations so as to injure more persons. The money that your name enables him to get, gives him a false standing and enables him to obtain credit from others and so in thousands of cases men are able to pass as men of capital and to inveigle others into giving them credit when they are worth nothing because they have your name to trade on.

Thousands of men have been ruined while bringing ruin to others, simply because they have been tempted to rub deeply into debt, from the ease with which they could find indorsers. Generally the first question I am asked when I tell a man that I would abolish the system of personal security is, "What would you do in the case of administrators, executors, trustees and men holding official positions, such as treasurer, etc., who are required by law to give bonds with good security, for the faithful performance of their duty?" I reply that in the first place I would have a law enacted which would put a default on the same grounds as a burglar, or highway robber and would punish with as great severity the men who speculated with and lost trust funds, as the one who stole the same amount of money. When a county treasurer robs the safe, it is not a help to the community that he bring ruin to half a score of respectable families of the county because their fathers have—as a mere formality—put their names to this bond. It would be better that the taxpayers lose it, and then when the time came to elect a new treasurer, would perhaps have wisdom enough to select a man of good character for the office, instead of some one who had worked the hardest for the success of his party.

But granting that it is necessary that there should be bonds given to secure the State, or individual, from loss, it ought to be done precisely as our insurance is done, by a company organized for the purpose, and in some of our cities trust companies have been formed for this very purpose, although I am not sure whether this has been applied to securing notes, but I know that it has in furnishing collectible bonds. But there is no reason why it could not be applied to all cases where security is demanded. If any one could ask his neighbor to insure his house without receiving any consideration for so doing, but merely as an act of neighborly kindness, the absurdity of the thing would be at once apparent, but in many cases he runs a much greater risk when he indorses a note than he would by insuring a house. A plan of this kind for furnishing security would be business like, and the managers of such a company would soon learn the standing of every man in the community, and they would be able to bring rewards to justice who tried to swindle their creditors.

I understand that the trust companies will now furnish bonds to men of good standing for half of one per cent. per annum on the face of the bond, at which rate a $10,000 bond would cost $50 a year. I presume this plan of furnishing security will be new to most of my readers as it was a short time ago to me. As we have not yet available to most of us this plan of giving security and as every man doing business is frequently asked to sign notes as an indorser, let me lay down a few rules to guide one in the matter, if he has not reached the point where he can cut loose entirely from the whole system:

First, no married man ought to indorse a note without his wife's knowledge and consent.

Second, he ought never to sign a note for a larger sum than he could pay without serious y embarrasing his business.

Third, he should never sign a note simply because he feels sure that there is no possible danger of his being called on to pay it, but with the knowledge of the responsibility he assumes as an indorser, and with the determination of walking up and paying it the day it is due if the principal is not able to meet it.

Fourth, an indiscriminate indorsing will bring financial ruin to any man, and as the man who asks another to indorse for him must be ready to return the favor, the safe way to indorse is to agree with some man in whom you have confidence to sign his note while he does the same for you, and each must agree not to indorse to the amount of a dollar for any one else except by mutual consent.

The reader may perhaps think that I am asking this matter of too great importance, but almost any neighborhood will furnish multiplied examples of men financially ruined by indorsing. I met within an hour on yesterday two men who had paid over $400,000 security money, and were reduced from affluence to poverty by it. Only a few years ago I was solicited to put my name as an indorser to a $2,500 note by a man in whom I had the utmost confidence, and I felt that there was no more risk in doing it than there would have been in depositing the same amount in a bank, and but for the fact that I had laid down settled rules to guide me, I should have signed the note without protest, but I declined, and within 30 days the man made an assignment, and his paper was not worth ten cents on the dollar. I do not write this because I have met heavy losses by indorsing, for I never paid but $100 security money, and that was many years ago and was cheap tuition in the school of experience, but I had one exceedingly narrow escape, and I have felt like warning young men ever since of the danger of going security.

—[Waldo F. Brown, in the Ohio Farmer.]

Two mills burned in the East End last week. The small mill belonging to Kaehler Bros., Crab Orchard, caught from the engine and was consumed. No insurance. William Hobbs's large saw and grain mill and carding factory, six miles south of C. O., on the Somerset road was burned by incendiary and was not insured. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Hobbs, who is a good, clever man and an excellent citizen. He will rebuild as he thinks the engine and boiler will do for use again.

It is a rare accomplishment to man or woman to be able gracefully to make compliments. The difficulty lies in the fact that honest praise or approval always loses by being "a little coaxed or petted." The briefest expression which bears the air of sincerity is better than the most elaborate effusion and profusion of complimentary phrases, which "by daily use have almost lost their sense." One need not be rude to be true; but, on the other hand, he is too effusive, he fulfills his best claim to credit.

—[Philadelphia Ledger]

Mrs. Clark thinks that women have only themselves to blame for some of the faults of men. Their viciousness and coarseness she thinks is largely owing to the fact that women are too cowardly to exact from men the same standard of virtue that is exacted of women. Then, too, men are negligent and selfish because women make so much of them, and give up to them so much. This she regards as a mistaken course, and thinks that women can be self-reliant and obedient.

Woman who do their own work regard their rough hands with great distress. To make and keep them soft wear old gloves at night, just rubbing in an ointment made by beating the white of an egg to a froth and stirring into a cup of melted lard, to which is added one teaspoonful of glycerine. Keep the mixture in a covered jar, excluding the light. Perfume may be added.

A witness against a Philadelphia loan keeper, who was on trial for violating the Sunday law, was a false heard. A lawyer detected it and pulled the heard off his face. When questioned as to his reason for appearing in disguise, he said he wanted to prevent loan keepers who might be present from recognizing him thereafter.

Ladies far agents at the smaller stations on some of the Eastern roads are proving very efficient. They keep the waiting rooms more cleanly and attractive, there are fewer loafers about the stations and tobacco users are not given the privileges that are accorded them by the male agents.

1888—We do not hesitate to say, that 1888 is something very choice and good, for ladies who desire to us. And when they meet their proper us, you bet we don't exult when boldly we answer, that not a woman will be '88 in gobbling up the tempting '88.

Smith—What is the idea in always putting the "Rest in Peace" on a tombstone in Latin? Jones—H'm'm'm, me boy, h'm'm'm. Latin's a dead language, ye know.

ACTS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

—The Senate passed the bill of Senator Berry making May 30 a legal holiday.

—The effort to make counties support their own idiots was beaten in the House 45 to 40.

—A bill to punish abortion or attempted abortion with from two to 21 years passed the House.

—A bill incorporating the Somerset, Rock Castle Springs & Eastern Kentucky Railroad Company passed the Senate.

—Bills to abolish the Agricultural Bureau and to continue it with an increase of $4,500 annual appropriation are before the House.

—The Senate passed a bill increasing the pension for total blindness from $13 to $30. This adds another couple of hundred thousand to the pension expense.

—"Lawyer Division" has offered a bill to make it a feasible offense for a druggist or any other person to give or sell opium, except on prescription of a regular physician.

—The Senate having by a vote of 22 to 8 declared against the Blair bill, it is hoped that it will put in its valuable time now on matters in which it is more directly interested.

—A bill is before the Legislature to authorize the L. & N. to double track portions of its route between Lexington and Louisville and to build a line between Shelbyville and Bagdad.

—Senator Rigney's bill to prohibit the sale of spirituous or malt liquors within one mile of the turnpike road leading from Yosemite to Danville, in Casey county, passed the Senate 18 to 11.

—The bill providing for the building of a new State capital has been set for consideration February 21. One member wanted to postpone it till June 21, evidently hoping that the session will last that long.

—A bill has been offered in the Senate increasing the annual salary of judges of the Court of Appeals from $4,000 to $5,000. The impression prevails that these judges get enough now for the work they do.

—The city council of Lexington has issued invitations to the members of the legislature to attend a banquet in their honor next Friday, when they hope to get them drunk enough to promise to remove the capital to that place.

—An effort is being made to supplant the present railroad commission with an agent selected by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, whose duty shall be the assessment of all railroad property in the State. The bill was made a special order for Feb. 7.

—The House bill limiting the number of guards to one to every two prisoners, passed the Senate, and another link to the treasury is stopped by its passage. It is said that under the prevailing system it has frequently cost from $300 to $400 to land a single convict in the penitentiary.

—Senator Rigney doesn't want his constituents to have any fun at all. Not content with wanting the whiskey traffic along the road from Danville to Yosemite prohibited, he now wants a bill to suppress the circulation, advertising and vending of obscene and immoral literature and to confiscate such property.

—Germany has loaned Mexico $14,000,000 on bonds at 70 cents to the dollar.

—George Peppers, a tramp, died at Saratoga, Mo., Wednesday from exposure. He made a fortune of half a million in the day of the oil excitement in Pennsylvania and afterwards lost it in Wall street, becoming a tramp in 1877 and sticking to it until death claimed him.

—The Royal Baking Powder Company, of Brooklyn, is in the courts to settle differences between the proprietors. The H. C. Land brothers are trying to force Wm. Ziegler to sell his interest in the company, and the district attorney has been asked to bring criminal proceedings.

—A mortgage of $3,500,000 has been filed in the Clerk's office in Covington from the Huntington Bridge Company to the Metropolitan Trust Company, of New York, to secure payment of the bonds to be issued for the construction of the railroad bridge between Covington and Cincinnati.

Organized crime has never failed to find its most ready instruments at the bar and on the beach. The worst chapters in our recent history show how the ablest lawyers have for enormous fees aided in perpetrating and perfecting the vile schemes for public plunder. There is no crime so dark that leading members of the bar will not accept a fee to defend those who conspire against the welfare of the people. —[Dan Dougherty.]

PARRY ISSUES.—The reduction of the tariff is a party issue.

The Blair bill is a party issue.

Service positions constitute a party issue.

Sugar and other subsidies make a party issue.

That Rarest of Combinations.—True delicacy of flavor with true efficiency of action has been attained in the famous California liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs. Its pleasant taste and beneficial effects have rendered it immensely popular. It cleanses the system, cures Constipation, etc.

—The editor—

—G. W. Payne, of this county, has been granted an increase of his pension.

—Mrs. Payton and Johnson were down Sunday to see Miss Spradlin.

—There will be a number of transfers on the line of agents and operators during this week.

—The annual inspection of the road by the general officers of the L. & N., took place on this division Saturday and Sunday.

—W. G. Adams handed us Saturday a copy of the New York Tribune of April 22, 1865, containing an account of the assassination of Lincoln and the fall of Mobile.

—Miss Mattie Williams and Mark Hurdin, of your place, came down Sunday. A R. Dyche, of the Echo, was here one day last week gathering names for his subscription list. R. R. Smith went to E. Town yesterday to visit his brother, whose wife is not expected to live.

—A negro laborer working for William Geer, went up in the knob one day last week when the sled was on and after imbibing pretty freely returned in the regular toboggan style. He rolled and slid down an incline for a distance of 300 feet. When found by his companions at the foot of the hill he was torn and bruised, his clothing torn to shreds and nearly frozen.

—James Baker was ejected from a passenger train Saturday evening, two miles north of Pine Hill. The passengers say Baker was drunk and had gone back into the ladies' coach and was carrying things at a high rate and when remonstrated with by the conductor he made an attack on that officer. Mr. Sullivan, the conductor, gave him as good as he sent and Baker went to grass and was put off.

—A report reached here Saturday that a surveying party in Bell county, under Gen. Duffield, had been attacked by the citizens and fired upon after being warned to leave the county. The survey is being made under an order from the U. S. Court to determine lines etc., of some old Virginia land grants which have been bought up by an eastern party. Trouble has been looked for from citizens who have lived on the lands for many years. The rumor of the attack on the party has not been verified and it is thought there has been no shot fired, as reported. Gen. Duffield's brother at Detroit was wired to this place for information on the subject.

An English syndicate is preparing to construct a tunnel through Cumberland Gap, which affords the only practicable entrance from the outside into Southeastern Kentucky. The syndicate is not building the tunnel for any particular railroad, but will run it on the same principle as one of our Ohio river bridges—open to all comers who will pay the tolls. The number of railroads projected into the mountain regions of Kentucky is astonishing. A striking feature of the present industrial movement is the quiet and important part English capitalists are taking. They have invested millions of dollars in the remote mountain counties, which fact is a pretty good indication that the boom is coming. —[Louisville Post.]

Field's Minstrels entertained one of the largest audiences of the winter at the Opera House Monday night last. Mr. Field has assembled a company of artists in the special line of business peculiar to such organizations, which is fully up to the standard of excellence. The instrumental music is superb, the incidental specialties pleasing and attractive and Field himself could entertain the audience without assistance for the three hours of rapid, roaring fun. The company in its entirety is entitled to be classed with the very best of minstrel entertainers and, as such, is commented to the amusement-loving public. —[Franklin Capital.]

At Walton's Opera House to night.

—The worst storm of the season and in many points the heaviest ever known, prevailed in the East last week. A train was entirely buried in the snow by a slide and had to be dug out.

W. P. WALTON.

I truly to be hoped that the legislature will amend our jury laws that criminals will not have everything their own way as at present. The Courier Journal does not overstate the abuses which arise from the manner of selecting jurors when it says that no important trial is conducted before a jury selected from the regular panel. When it is exhausted the State challenges are exhausted too, and the lawyers for the accused make up the jury to suit their client. For such a jury intelligence disqualifies a man; information disqualifies him; rigid views favoring the punishment of crime disqualifies; general good character disqualifies him, and, as a result the man is tried, not by representative citizens, not by men who have anything at stake in the community, but by those whose character and mental endowments unfit them for such public duties. It is not necessary to make up the entire jury in this way; one determined man selected after the State has exhausted its challenges, will in an emergency outvote eleven. In view of the failure of justice and immunity that the present system gives to murderers, it ought not take the legislature a day to pass a law reducing and equalizing challenge and making intelligence and honesty no bar to service upon juries.

"The City of Louisville and a Glimpse of Kentucky" is the title of an elegantly gotten up and beautifully printed book published by the Committee on Industrial and Commercial Improvement of the Louisville Board of Trade. It contains 160 pages and an amount of valuable information concerning our metropolis and the resources of the state at large that is simply wonderful. It is also handsomely illustrated and as a medium for laying the advantages possessed by Kentucky before the public it can hardly be overestimated. The editorial work was done by that talented writer, Mr. Young E. Allison, to whom we are indebted for the copy before us. It is said that it cost over $13,000 to produce the volume. The designing, engraving, electrotyping and printing were all done by the Courier-Journal Job Company and reflect great credit on that concern. The press work could not have been more faultlessly executed.

SENATOR BLAIR continues his daily dose on his educational subsidy bill. The other Senators usually have business outside when he commences, but he fires away all the same, even if but four or five are left to hear him, as on last Friday, when it took just 14 broad double columns of the Record to contain it. Most of the matter is in small type, being extracts, reports of pedagogues, communications in cross road papers, complicated "rule and figure" work, etc. He wore the clerks out reading the matter, which he introduced as a part of his speech. It would take 15 or 20 columns to give space to the speech and no paper in the country would print a column of it. This is only one day's work, mind you; he has been pecking away every chance he can get ever since Christmas. It's a pity there is no way of stopping the old fellow before he runs down.

A REGULAR "Bibb Bunting" breach of promise case has just been tried at Mayville, resulting in Miss Josie Woods getting a verdict of $5,000 and an attorney's fee of $100 of the $5,000 claimed by her from S. H. Poe, who wined and wooed but deceived. His letters were introduced and they were even more gushing than old A. C. buckle's. One full of love words with "I send you 13 kisses, 12 hugs and one pinch," another sends "all the kisses and a good buggin' thrown in," while a third tells how much he wishes to see her "to kiss her right square in the mouth." The trial created a big sensation and the gossip had a week of unalloyed pleasure.

The bill before the legislature to make drunkenness punishable with a fine of $50, is a move in the right direction. At present all the penalty is assessed against the man who sells, while the man who makes a hog of himself goes free, unless he commits some other offense. When both the vender and the drinker are punished, prohibition will have taken a big stride towards the object it aims at.

THERE is still living in Henderson county Ind., a good old democrat, 89 years of age, who is the father of 45 children, 43 of whom are boys and all democrats. The old man had three wives in his time and the last is the mother of a two year old boy. No wonder Indiana goes democratic.

THE Jessamine Journal is one of the best exchanges that adorn our table. Col. McCarty may not be as pretty as Jim Hopper or Ben Harrison, but what he does not know about making a newspaper is not worth knowing.

THE Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives of Kentucky having decided that the office of master commissioner is not an office, a New Orleans jury goes to sleep by deciding that Keno is not gambling.

THE Monticello Signal nominates our eloquent young friend, J. C. Sautley, for Congress, believing that he could down Judge Finley, the ring-tailed, rantankerous raver, who now misrepresents the 11th.

—Speaker Carlisle has sufficiently recovered to return to Washington to-morrow.

THE "In and About Kentucky" man of the Courier Journal is moved to remark in manner and form as follows, to-wit: "Rural humor, as a rule, is fearfully and wonderfully made, and fortunately for them the large majority of country editors do not try to be funny." He should have added that the city editors are not so careful of the feelings of their readers, but unfortunately indulge in alleged humorous attempts that a diagram accompaniment could not hardly elucidate. No, no, country editors cannot be funny, it is only their smart city cousin who can.

MAXWELL, the English dude, who murdered his friend for his money and packed his body in a trunk, smokes a hundred cigarettes a day and fasts are entertained that they will kill him before the gallows can claim its own. He ought to be given all he can smoke to see how soon they would cause death, and his fate then held up as a terrible example to those who have the little things constantly stuck in their mouths. In either manner of his taking off the tea soon would be a good one.

It is to be hoped that the legislature will pass the bill introduced by Mr. Hogg, to make the lying in wait to commit an assault punishable with from two to ten years in the penitentiary, whether the assault is made or not. No punishment would be so severe for the cowardly scoundrel guilty of such an act.

ONE negro at least is thriving under the Cleveland administration. James A. Trotter, the recorder of deeds in the District of Columbia, averages $125 a day in fees.
